Do you have attacks that just don't quite make it to the target? If you end up lunging and finishing your attack only to get hit after you miss, then watch this new sabre video from Fencing.Net user CyrusofChaos as he breaks down the attacks of Pillet (FRA) and Decsi (HUN).

Watch this video and then look at videos of your own fencing. How are the people you fence reacting when you fall short and what adjustments are you making? How are you making them pay when they make this kind of attack on you?

If you have examples of this working out for you in foil or sabre, then please share.

You can also discuss this video in the forums.
